HON. HENRY ASHURST.

Tells of a Few Things Mark Smith Has Done for Arizona.

Hon. Henry F. Ashurst, of Prescott, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, in reply to the Republican question: "What has Mark Smith done for Arizona," when in Nogales Monday night told near a thousand people some of the many things Mr. Smith, who is running with him for the United States Senate, has done for the people of Arizona during the many years of honorable, faithful service in Congress.

Ashurst's answer to the Smith question and his startling presentation of the records of some of the leading Republican candidates have become features of the campaign. He charges Ralph Cameron present Delegate to Congress, with having engineered the disfranchisement of 7000 Arizona voters, who are shut out of the December 12 election because the Arizona Enabling Act under which the election is to take place bases the voting under the registration of 1908, upon which Cameron was elected to office. That there are 7000 persons in the State who should be permitted to vote in the coming election, but who are kept from voting because they were not registered in 1908 or upon supplements to that register kept open until a little more than a year ago, is the charge nightly made by Ashurst.

Ashurst further charges that Cameron, instead of recently appointing an Arizona boy to a place in Annapolis, gave the appointment to the son the New England agent of the Standard Oil Company, the boy having lived in Arizona six days at the time of the appointment.

"What has Mark Smith done for Arizona?" said Ashurst. "I presume that there is no man who really knows all of the things Mr. Smith has done for this State and for its people. Probably he does not remember all of them himself, in the multitude of his activities for all of us who live here and want to see Arizona prosper."

"But I can tell you of a few of the big things he has done. Every Arizona school boy ought to know of the faithful service Mr. Smith has rendered in the eight terms of his service in Washington, in Congress and between sessions."

"One of the most dramatic stories of Arizona history, and there has been much that is dramatic in that history, is the story of Mark Smith's fight to save the Salt River and Gila Valleys—these broad acres that are becoming an empire within an empire for the people of Arizona and the settlers whose coming was but a dream when Smith made his fight."

"You all know the history of the Peralto-Reavis claims. An adventurer appeared in Arizona—a plausible, well financed adventurer. Under the guise of an old grant from the open hand of the rulers in Mexico and Spain, Reavis convinced Roscoe Conkling and Robert G. Ingersoll and John Broadhead of St. Louis, president of the American Bar Association, that the grant and claims were genuine. These eminent men the attorneys for Reavis."

"But Mark Smith was for the people, and Mark Smith proved that the documents presented by the claimants were forgeries. He had commissioners sent to Mexico and to Spain to look up the records. In the end Reavis went to jail and the broad lands that he and his mysterious backers sought to grab remained the property of the people. Mark Smith did that."

"Mark Smith made the first speech ever made in Congress in favor of the irrigation of arid lands. He is the father of all of this marvelous fertility that is being developed upon our irrigated lands. He secured the first appropriation for the survey of the Salt River and Gila Valleys, and he was the member of the committee that drafted our present irrigation law."

"But that is only the beginning of the recital. Possibly some one may remember that it was Mark Smith who defeated the joint statehood bill. The most powerful forces of the country were for joint statehood. Mark Smith, voicing the will of the people of this commonwealth, generated the fight against the bill, and because he was right he won. Mark Smith did that."

"While serving on the Committee of Indian Affairs, he, in company with Mr. Stephens of Texas, drew and had passed through the House the bill for the payment of Indian depredation claims, under which many hundreds of thousands of dollars has been paid to Western settlers, many of whom reside in Arizona, and but for the amendment placed on the House bill in the Senate by Senator Edmunds of Vermont, all the just Apache Indian claims in Arizona would have been allowed."

"He passed the bill through Congress forcing the government to pay the expenses of trial and the cost of imprisonment of all reservation Indians charged with crime in Territory of Arizona. Under this bill large sums of money were returned to the different counties in the Territory."

"As the population and business increased in Arizona, he caused new judicial districts to be created by Congress for the purpose of meeting quickly the demands of litigants."

"When the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad bought the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad they claimed exemption from taxes by reason of the terms of the original land grant of the Atlantic and Pacific road and it refused to pay the taxes for many years and caused the counties much litigation on account of it. When they attempted to get a charter from Congress consolidating the two roads under one system, Mark Smith successfully opposed the grant of such charter until the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe agreed to pay, and ever since that time has paid into the treasury of the different counties through which it runs the flat sum of $175 per mile taxes, and the road further stipulated that it would waive any claim of exemption under the original act after Arizona became a State."

"For years he has successfully resisted the effort to charge the stockmen of Arizona for the privilege of grazing the public lands."

"When the town of Yuma was threatened by the floods of the Gila River he procured and appropriation by means of which was built the levee that now protects Yuma from that danger, and this he did over the unanimous report and the opposition of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors."

"He caused the public debt of Arizona to be refunded by Congress at a much lower rate of interest, thus saving the Territory many thousands of dollars a year."

"He passed the statehood bill through the House of Representatives four separate times, only to have it defeated by the Republican Senate."

"During the last Congress in which he served more than four hundred pensions were granted to Arizona claimants."

"He was the first Delegate who successfully placed in the statehood bill a grant of four sections of land instead of two theretofore granted new States in each township for the support of public schools, and the same has been retained in the bills for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico every time that either has passed the House."

"These are just a few of Mark Smith's services for Arizona. I want to tell you that the man who is going to be my associate from Arizona in the Senate is the noblest battery that has ever thundered in the cause of Arizona. Let no Arizona voter forget."
